

FLOSS Consulting

The great advancement of Linux in the corporate sector and the use of software based on open source components make companies progressively realize the advantages of this technological movement. It does not only significantly reduce costs of development and implementation, but also provides reduction of risks and improvement of stability and performance, accompanied by a short-term return of investment.

Our professional team disposes of the appropriate training and tools which allow them to implement projects within the stipulated time and with predictalbe outcome, giving to the client a trustworthy, useful and maintainable product. This process involves special care to the realistic needs of the end user's business or activity.
